“What hath God wrought!”

7:00 PM, Tuesday, September 16, 2003, Nazareth Hall, Blue Room, Northwestern College

"What hath God wrought!": Book of Numbers 23:23; quoted by Samuel F. B. Morse in the first telegraph message he sent to his partner, Alfred Vail, from Washington to Baltimore (May 24, 1844)--from Bartlett's Familiar Quotations.

This quotation seems appropriate to TCCSA on this 30th anniversary of our founding. From an idea planted in the minds of a few has sprung a thriving organization with an impressive outreach. We average about 138 each month at our meetings, send out more than 500 newsletters ten times a year, plus we have over 150 on our e-mail list. Our web site (www.tccsa.tc) receives hundreds of hits each month from all over the world. Many of our speakers are known and respected nation-wide and in some instances, world-wide. Adventure Safaris reaches hundreds of school kids each year with good science and a world-view based solidly on the Bible. These things don't just happen on their own, God provides the resources and the people to make them happen.

This month we will be reviewing how TCCSA began and what has transpired over the past three decades. Bill Overn was there at the start and will be our keynote speaker presenting “What has happened in the Past 30 Years of Creation Ministry?” Our president, Al Heitkamp, will be the Master of Ceremonies. Russ McGlenn will present a short science lesson that will impress and excite everyone. We expect several Twin Cities Creation pioneers will attend. Creation Moments will be here with a selection of books, tapes and CD's available for purchase. Other Twin Cities and area resources will be available for you to peruse. Books and tapes will be given away in a free drawing. This isn't just for the old folks, it's for everyone to come and enjoy a good time.

Adventure Safaris

School is getting underway and we are settling in for another year. Openings for home school coops are still available, contact us if you want a Bible-based science program for your students. Start planning for the science fair in February at Har Mar Mall.

Adventure Safaris presents the Creator and His designs and laws to homeschool coops and to immigrant and Native-American children. As a nonprofit organization, we are supported by our school work as well as by interested churches and individuals. All gifts made out to TCCSA are tax deductible.
